

Sara S. McGarraugh, M.P.P.

Director of Consulting, The Improve Group

Sara is an equity-focused evaluator who motivates clients to consider the ways evaluation can be a force for a more just world. Her passionate optimism brings energy to her relationships and drives her ability to think creatively with others while homing in on practical next steps. Outside of work, Sara loves connecting with people over food (she is always looking for new recipes) and negotiating with her spouse about where to travel next.

Expertise

Evaluation

Sara engages clients to think deeply and critically about how to design equitable evaluations with community at their heart. She leads projects with the perspective that her role is to provide evaluation expertise and create pathways for communities to contribute their lived expertise in ways that work for them. Sara is unafraid of asking critical questions, acknowledging tricky power dynamics, or raising issues that may otherwise fester under the surface of the evaluation. This helps Sara consider multiple and divergent perspectives in a fair way. She shows vulnerability by being transparent about where she is learning, helping to build trust and acknowledge that evaluation is a journey that people experience in different ways. Her commitment to equity shows up in relationships with those affected by an evaluation and creative approaches to achieving shared goals in the work.

Consulting

Sara's project management expertise ensures she delivers projects on budget and on time, even when she is navigating complex and unknown systems with clients. Her clear and frequent communication skills help clients and partners trust the quality of her teams' work. She is skilled at supporting clients in considering the ways evaluation can help advance equity. Building relationships is important to Sara—she enjoys getting to know clients, partners, and the people they serve, cultivating authentic relationships that ensure project experiences are positive and everyone grows together. Sara is particularly skilled at acting as a negotiator among people affected by a project, bringing into and valuing different voices in the evaluation process.

Facilitation

Sara is a skilled facilitator who designs processes to enable groups to achieve their objectives. She is attentive to group dynamics and draws from a variety of techniques such as Technology of Participation® and Art of Hosting to ensure inclusion of different learning and engagement styles. Sara is a confident public speaker and facilitator with groups of all sizes. Funnell and Rogers' "Purposeful Program Theory" influences her approach to facilitating clients to create theories of change; her diverse experiences facilitating this process also continually improve her approach. Sara is attentive to group dynamics and is skilled in facilitating people with different experiences and perspectives to create useful program tools.

Collective Impact facilitation, backbone support

Sara brings her combined expertise in evaluation, equity, and facilitation to Collective Impact models. Her deep understanding of how to apply the model framework to Collectives allows her to design tools that support evaluation of the Collective's work while also building the knowledge of the model among partners. She recognizes the dynamics at play in bringing diverse groups alongside the process and the challenges of navigating between organizations who all have their own practices.

Partnering with Dakota County and community organizations to support facilitation of a cross-agency community-led effort to create a county One Stop Shop for services. Sara and her team convened organizations and community members to design a One Stop Shop pilot, evaluate community opportunities, and design a One Stop Shop framework rooted in community desires and needs.
